

On Thursday, May 17, 2018, Germantown High School recognized eleven students as “Students of the Year,” which is a part of the "Student of the Month" initiative and breakfast. These students were nominated by a teacher in one of the departments listed below and that teacher then attended the breakfast and presented the reasons for the nomination. The criteria used for selection is: 1) the student goes above and beyond within the classroom, 2) the student has shown dramatic improvement in the classroom and 3) the student has earned a high academic achievement. Parents, the student, and their teacher attend this breakfast held before school each month and this was the culminating event.

Germantown High School is proud to present the 2017-18 “Student of the Year” recipients:

Left to Right:

Kaylie Krueger (Art), Jaycie Kuczynski (Family and Consumer Sciences), Shivali Zala (Social Studies), Elizabeth Koenen (Mathematics), Jaclyn Cotey (English), Jeremy Erickson (Business Education), Ryan Sobczak (Science), Ben Copeland (Physical Education), Marty Cash (World Languages)

Not pictured: Lauren Masarik (Music) and Quenton St. George (Technology Education)

